Have you told your school leavers about apprenticeships?

An apprenticeship is an excellent route to a career within the print industry. With the Government increasing university tuition fees, NUS predict that the average expenditure for a student per year will be £22,855. This means students could be left with nearly £70,000 worth of debt after finishing a degree.

Key reasons to choose an Apprenticeship

- Apprentices earn while they learn
- Apprentices build a professional network from the day they start
- Apprenticeships offer 'limitless learning' and go up to a doctoral level
- Every day as an apprentice is different and skills learnt are transferable to other potential roles
- The Government are committed to apprenticeships. They provided £40 million for 20,000 more higher apprenticeship starts over the 2013/14 and 2014/15 academic years, while increasing tuition fees for university students.

National Apprenticeship Service

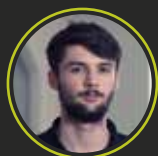

"Apprenticeships provide an excellent opportunity to allow young people to grow and develop within a work environment. They have allowed us to 'home grow' a stream of talented employees who add real value to our business."

Barry Curryer, Operations Director, BCQ
